The Fallure of a Gold Specula-tor.

GAR-HETCHUM AGAIN DRAWN INTO WHIRPOOL AND WRECKED The failure of James Boyd, a Wall str broker, with liabilities amo dellars, was announced by The N. Y. Herald gives a long When the note of Mr. Boyd was read

The N. Y. Herald gives a long birth of the border, and his relations with Edgar Ketchum, the young and daring gold speculator, who came to grief a few years since on account of Higgl use of other men's names to bolster up transactions too heavy for him to carry alone. The history of his late operations is interesting, and may be of use to others who have become affected with the rage for gold, and are in danger of venturing beyond their proper depth.

Mr. Ketchum is now thirty-two year fage. In the prime of life, and possessed of this keen, analytical and executive faculties, he could not conquar himself, and why should he?

The therefore went to Wall street. The same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the sould not conquar himself, and why should he?

The therefore went to Wall street. The same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when, at the same friends who stood by him when same friends who stood

He therefore went to Wall street. And ame friends who stood by him when, at the age of twenty-five he was the boldest and most daving operator on the street, rocking corporations, holding the credit of themsands in its hands, came to his side and offered him their pecuniary aid and personal encouragement. He needed but have the street, and was again in personal encouragement. He needed bu little stimulus to return, and was again it um is familiar to all up to the time of his disastrous failure. When he swept away $4,000,000 his repute was spotless. Aside from his honor as a man; he was looked upon as a financial predigy, as a marvel-upon as a financial predigy, as a marvellous genius.

- Since his reappearance in Wall street,
Mr. Ketchum has demonstrated his title to such a name in no insignificant way.
Let the reader look at the style in which he conducts his operations, upon the general truths, their development, the evolution of great political and financial systems, upon their initiate and ultimate as well as subtle influence upon the unseen market of Wall street.

With a comprehensive mind, rare indeed, even in a man of the maturest years,
Mr. Ketchum looks for material influence

e has a close familiarity with political oney and all the events that are daily spiring throughout the world. He is student of newspapers. He never anything without the most thought-deliberation. He watches the moveproducts as they are passed from one shore to the other. Mr. Ketchum is not, however, of the large clase who speculate upon the credit of the country, looking for its destruction and hoping for its speedy downfall.

It is but one of the incidents of Wall street life that there are thousands who may be some some great disaster will rain gold balance, believing that ere the morning comes some great disaster will rain comes some great disaster will rain force and the street life that there are thousands who may be some some great disaster will rain for many and the consequence was he made a clear, and the consequence and to made a clear, and the consequence and the consequence was he made a clear, and the consequence and to made a clear, and the consequence and the consequence was he made a clear, and the consequence and the clear, and the consequence was he made a clear, and the consequence was he made a clear, and the conseque foreign wars, of domestic troubles and diplomatic complications. They lay my successive warks thinking of Cube; how her recognitions as a belligarent or her forcible occupation by the United States might lead to mot dower with Spain, and then gold at 200—purely or what cossess of profits!

Under such exciting influences and such delaurie hopes that are founded in ill for their country these men grasp the morning papers for intelligence that will send gold up and iffill their own pockets. Thus is the mania kept, up; thus are these men deceived, and thus do they leave Wall street losers, but never winners. It is trading upon our national prosperity; it is wishing for the nation's evil. And yet these same men it, us, and day by day pursue the same disastrous policy. They are as short-sighted as they are unpatrication.

This theory has been wrong, and Mr. Ketehum has failed; and in his failure Mr. Beporter—What is the upshot of the Seyd has gone down with him. The mistake was here: The great national export is cetton. The crop this year is abundant—surpassingly immense. When it goes to Europe it goes to place of gold.

Mr. Ketchum started with ample funds and steadfast frienda. He was at once beilliantly successful. He bought largely of gold when gold rose from 111½ to 115½. The gold market became dull and everything was fast; foreign exchange fall off; the immense new cotton crop beaks the market, caning gold to decline, and the tide of coin bet in from the East. First, then, Mr. Ketchum was a bear in the market, and he made largely,—hundred of thousands of dollars. Then he became a ball from a theory of his own, that the imports would be large, and that there would be not siturbing influences of political coonemy. Then he lost, and finally irretrievably.

During these operations, $500,000 were made and lost. He held $5,000,000 were made and lost. He held $5,000,000 in gold earlied by Mr. Boyd, and the process of shoorption was rapidly going on, amsenting to $1,000 per day for interest, and a large amount for "ahrinkage" and commissions.

Upon the same theory (the upward tendency of the market) Mr. Ketchum went inte stocks. Then, also, he bought $5,000,000 in Pacific Mail, Ohio and Mississippi New York Central, when they were and New York Central, when they were much lower than they are now. Followed by his evil destiny, more mar-gins had to be put up, more interest was called for, more commissions, the stocks were heavy losers and Mr. Ketchum con-tianed long $5,000,000. He beught and sold on light margains, and Mr. Boyd, not only his true and confiding friend, were his constant superior in accuracy proves himself as in favor of conciliation, and ant superior in every move

The very fact that the Democrats have no hope that is not identified with men who are or have been Republicans, or without an open avowal of Republican ideas, is at once our best vindication and our strongest inspiration."

The World's Montreal special says: A great independance mass meeting took place here on Saturday night. In the course of a stirring speech Hon. John Young said that the time had now come when Canada should sever the connection with Great Britain and become an independent nation. At this announcement the greatest part of the vast assembly chered lustily. Lafamma said that appeal to England for support in case of an invasion of the Dominion would be fatile. The present imperial administration had deserted her colonics and proved herself a stepmother to thoe who had fostered the deepest affection for her, and it was therefore folly to think of anything but independence. Other speakers followed in the same strain and the meeting adjourned to Tuesday. The independence movement may be regarded as fully started in the Dominion.

A number of tragedies are reported, as usual, as having occurred in the city and suburbs yesterday. The most extraordinary was the fatal stabbing of a young Frenchman named Jaizean, by a jealous husband, at 71 West Ninth street. The murderer, Edmund Janne, had suspected his wife of infidelity, and at 9 o'clock last evening meeting his supposed wronger he plunged a knife into his neck. Mrs. Janne was taken to the station-house with her husband. She denies the allegations against her fame.

Yesterday morning a German named Daniel Litchen was stabbed by Thomas Sheridan, a printer, in Thirty-seventh street. The assassination was done in the street. The murdered man walked home with his hands over his abdomen to keep his intestines back. He was then carried in a dying condition to the hospital by the police. Sheridan was caught and locked up, as already reported.

In East Forty-seventh street James Mc-Manus quarrelled with his wife, chased her down stairs and during her flight fixed four shots at her, one of the bullets entering an opposite dwelling and taking effect in the back of Mrs. Fitzgibbons as she was lying in bed. The wound was severe. The free shooter was marched off to prison in Brooklyn.

over 1868 at more than a million of acres, making an aggregate of 19,098,000 acres. I figure a reduction this Spring of more than 900,000 acres, or nearly five per centof last year's assumed acreage. The reduction is greatest in Illinois-fifteen per cent in Winter wheat, and eighteen in Spring wheat: Indiana, six per cent in Winter and twenty in Spring : Ohio, four per cent in Winter and seven in Spring; Wisconsin and Lowa, (Spring mostly) each eight per cent; Missouri (Winter) seven per cent; Minnesota, with an increasing population, while threatening to stop wheat-growing, claims an increase of two of sixteen per cent, and California a gain of five per cent; West Virginia and Kenome of the Cotton States falling off twenty per cent; New York appears to

The season has been moderately propitious as a whole, though not precisely as farmers would have ut in many localities. There have been fow showers and much sunshine, gu-hing the crop into early ma-turity, but promising a yield not equal to the thirteen or fourteen bushels per acro sunshine, pu-hing the crop into early maturity, but promising a yield not equal to the thirteen or fourteen bushels per acre of last year, and scarcely equal to that of 1888, but with an average of eleven bushels. In many places the prospect was never better. In some localities there is complaint of too little rain, and in others of too much. The rain-fall in May was quite small in Now England, New York, generally throughout the West and in the two per cent.

cotton States. In the Atlantic States south of New York, on the contrary, rains have been excessive. In New York much of the Winter grain is not in an average condition; in Washington county "it seldom looked worse at this season of the year;" it is small and unpromising in Genesce; the late-sown is unthrifty in Livingston. Spring grain looks better. In New Jersey, wheat has "made on extraordinary growth" in Gumberland has "much improved" in Hunterdon, and the season has been unusually favorable in Burlington, and is looking well throughout the State. The crop presents an improved appearance in Pennsylvania, promises well in Maryland, and a good everage crop is cutting in Virginia and North Carolina, with little loss from rate of falling in consequence of heavy rains. Caronian, with much stass from trate of rains. The crop in the South is generally good, though light in some places, as the result of drouth. The Tappahaunock (from the Depat tment of Agriculture) is a great successive bit in the caronic part of the state of the st coss in this region, and is very generally preferred. In the Red River region, Texas, the weather has been cool, and the crop late, but unusually fine. It has been injured there only by hail and other storms. The crop will be fair in Tennessee, with some drawbacks, as lodging, rust, etc., during recent heavy rains.

In Illinois, a reduction of perhaps fifteen per cent. may be expected in the yield; in some counties the crop appears well; in some counties the crop appears well; in some fears are entertained that little more than haif a crop will be gathered. When the plant had a feeble vitality at the start, the dry weather has nearly destroyed it. Accounts from Indiana are variable, ranging from failure to fullness. Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, in fact all the Western States, report more discourarements from feeble growth, drouth, hail, rain and rust than for two years past, and render probable a much smaller aggregate production than that of last year, and very likely a smaller yield than that of 1868.

The Income Tax in the Senate

The Senate on Friday, by a vote of 34 to 23, struck from the tax bill all the sec abolishing that tax entirely. The Committee on Finance was not prepared for this, and their plans were so much de-ranged with regard to the reduction of taxes, that they asked to have the further consideration of the bill postponed until next Monday, seas to give them an opportunity to adjust the other features of the to meet this change. They had made all their calculations of reducing the taxes on the basis of ctaining the tax on all incomes of over two thousand dollars. The announce ment of the abolition of the tax was re ceived with much satisfaction in the House, and it is believed that body will concur with the Senate. It is stated that Senator Sherman intends to move to strike out all that part of the bill relating to the sitisfactory in the tariff bill proposed by the House. The proposition is to allow the tariff to remain as it is for another

"The analogy of what happens by training among lower animals proves that class habits must necessarily be transmitted to the travent classes of society. I do not think that the transmission of thieving and other criminal habits forms any exception to other analogies. One of the most remarkable examples of a criminal family I know of was that of three brothers who had families amounting to fifteen members in all. Of these, fourteen were utterers of base coin; the fifteenth appeared to be exceptional, but at length was detected in setting fire to his house after insuring it for four times its value.
